Introduce TCFD Framework and Carbon Footprint Verification

In 2021, Capital Securities established its ESG Committee. It was upgraded to a functional committee under the Board of the company on November 10th, 2022 and renamed the Sustainable Development Committee. In 2022, Capital Securities hired experts from Taiwan's Institute for Information Industry (III) to assist the company with scenario analysis on climate change risks and disclosures of climate financial risks according to the guidance of Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD). This move aims to achieve the following: (a) to provide a broader and more rigorous assessment of potential impacts in the long run; (b) to help all stakeholders understand Capital Securities' efforts and actions in sustainable development through information disclosure.

Capital Securities has conducted a preliminary verification of direct and indirect greenhouse gas emissions, which is disclosed in the company's Sustainability Report. The company aims to achieve carbon reduction targets in the following categories: the gasoline consumption of official vehicles, the diesel fuel consumption of generators and power consumption. Capital Securities will comply with the Sustainable Development Roadmap and is set to conduct and complete its carbon footprint verification in 2023 and 2024, respectively. Its consolidated subsidiaries are scheduled to undergo and complete the verification in 2025 and 2027, respectively.

Green Finance & Capital Securities' Patent in Fintech CAPITAL

Capital Securities provides electronic bank statements of all products for clients to replace its paper counterparts. In addition, the company also introduced several digital service platforms including the following: (a) the E-counter app, which offers multiple-in-one online account opening service; (b) the digital service apps like the wealth management app "Yi Hu Tong" (one-pass security account), GOODi intelligent wealth management robot and the Winners' Smart Investment Strategy app. These applications provide several digital services such as online contract signing service, multiple-in-one account opening service, and individualized investment analysis and company information notifications. As Fintech plays an important role in Green Finance, Capital Securities leveraged big data analysis and AI technology and obtained three patents in 2021 for a new customer segmentation model, a key investment recommendation model and an intelligent transliteration API. These automation models enable Capital Securities to precisely grasp client types in the shortest possible time and provide suitable services that can better meet clients' demand.

Sustainable Development Efforts and Results

Capital Securities has underwritten a total of tens of billions of outstanding sustainable development bonds at present to help issuing companies raise funds for green investment projects related to climate change, energy saving and carbon reduction. In 2019, the company also issued the first Green ETN, a move ahead of the market. This ETN seeks to track the index composed of China's A50 stocks, excluding industries with high carbon emissions but including companies with high revenue proportion of renewable energy and green products, demonstrating a combination example of ESG investment and sustainable development. In short, Capital Securities will continue to support green financing and introduce green products in the future as a green financial institution.

Corporate Social Responsibility in Action

Capital Care

Capital Securities has been paying attention to social issues for a long time. In addition to the Love Reading Program for rural students and blood donation promotion events, Capital Securities has collaborated with the Yu-Cheng Social Welfare Foundation on making 2023 calendars featuring prize-winning works of participants with intellectual disabilities in the foundation's 12th drawing contest in hope to attract more attention and support for the artistic potential of these "slow-flying angels".
